17 TO 0

Maysville Wins In a Walk From the Cincinnati All Stars—Game Was a Regular Swatfest.

The Maysville boys easily put it on the Cincinnati All Stars in a five inning contest by the score of 17 to 0.

A heavy rain fell for about fifteen minutes before the game started, and made the grounds quite soggy, thus making the contest a cross between a slugging bee and a combination of mudlarks.

The feature of the game was the running catch by Manager Chapman in left field and the all around playing of the Maysville team.

The score follows:

Innings . . . . . 1 2 3 4 5 — R H E
All Stars . . . . . 0 0 0 0 0 — 0 1 3
Maysville . . . . . 1 0 6 4 6 — 17 17 1

HERE'S A GENTLE TIP TO TOBACCO GROWERS.

It is claimed by many experienced tobacco men that loose leaf tobacco warehouses will do more to control the acreage than any other method or argument. The reason is plain. Tobacco is supposed to sell for its actual value on the loose leaf floor. Good tobacco brings good prices, and the weed that is poor in quality is almost certain to bring the grower a poor price. As soon as the growers realize that they can not longer depend on the extra fine crops of neighbors to boost the price of their poor crops, they, too, will pay more attention to quality and less attention to quantity, with the result that an average crop will be grown, the buyer will be better satisfied and the grower will realize a higher price than he has ever before received.—Owensboro Messenger.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT.

It was just like Wilson, who once taught psychology and political economy, to get insulted at Huerta just at the right time to capture enough field guns to equip a dozen batteries, and then prove by the written book that Mexico and the United States are not at war.

Who is behind Huerta with money and encouragement, we know not. Maybe there is nobody. Whether he deliberately sought to embroil this country in a war to circumvent the triumphant Rebels to the north of Mexico City by rallying national sentiment to his support in the face of an alien foe, or whether like ourselves he is somewhat the creature of circumstances in this affair, is equally a subject of conjecture only.

Of one thing we are certain, Mr. Wilson has exhibited statesmanlike poise. While his trusted agents were in Mexico acquiring facts, which are the only raw material Mr. Wilson ever uses in his mental processes, he has cleared the situation of all possible foreign complications. While refusing to recognize the claims of the monster, Huerta, he has attempted, with what success we know not, to counteract in a war to circumvent the triumphant Rebels the Constitutionalists that we seek nothing further than to lend a neighborly hand where most sorely needed; and now that the crisis has come, we find him striking squarely a blow that will cripple the defense of Huerta, if the worst comes, and convince the people of Mexico that the smiling face of Uncle Sam is neither guileless nor the sign of a flabby muscular system.

Technically it is a peculiar situation we are in. We are not fighting Mexico—at least, we think we are not. We are going after Huerta; but if Huerta turns out to be Mexico after all, why, then we are in for a fight. If some kindly intervention of providence should suddenly eliminate Huerta before events press further toward their fulfillment from Vera Cruz to the Capital there might be an end to the situation that developed almost before our astonishment and perplexity over conditions had a chance to give way to indignation at a national affront.

We would be on hand to see a new administration started with the proper understanding in Mexico in that event; and it is a thing to be desired; for never has a nation more reluctantly nor seemingly more inevitably been drawn into a conflict.—State Journal.

Recalling that Senator Foraker once told his Republican brethren that the reason he sulked within his tepee was a desire to be in position to gather up the pieces after the wreck. This was taken that he meant to be the patron saint, who would rebuild the grand old machine. But, here he is making away the fifth wheel, which in this instance is the senatorial honors.—Georgetown (O.) News-Democrat.

FINANCE AND POETRY.

The better class of banks have come to realize the benefits of intelligent advertising, but, so far as observed, a bank in Atchison, Kans. is the first to use limericks for this purpose. One of its ads last week was this: "There was a young man who raved, because he no money had saved, When asked why he grieved, he frowned and looked peeved, and said, 'I wish I had thought and behaved.'"

COXEY OUT OF DATE.

General Coxe can't make it go again. Manners and men have been changing rapidly, and when the General climbed into the old phaeton, clucked to the old mule, and started out of Massillon, Ohio, bound for Washington with his army, he was bound to fail. The General is an anachronistic as "Ta-ra-boom-de-ay." He was of and for other times, and when the army reached Canton he had only 20 followers. They were hunting for sandwiches.

A younger crew with improved methods are assailing and rebuking society—Tannenbaum and "Dirty John" Wengrove in New York, singing "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," and behaving as such.

Even Ben Reitman and Emma Goldman have to go West to wake up the animals. The East yawns at them. "Mother" Jones was hardly heard of in the West Virginia strike. She had to go to Colorado to have her "rights" invaded and her civil liberty denied.

The East is becoming persuaded that talk is talk and that it does not begin to do harm until officialdom tries to stop it. The English found this out years ago. If an Englishman has anything on his mind he may go to Trafalgar Square and be as violent as his vocabulary will permit him. Generally, all the police do is to keep other violent friends of man hitting him with a brick.

Coxey, by hopelessly obsolete methods, is trying what even the imaginative and energetic I. W. W. leaders are finding it increasingly difficult to do in New York, even by adopting the most modern methods of assailing and reproaching society.

Coxey is a misled old man. He'd better turn the old mule around and drive home.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE.

What You Preach.
He lectured on peace;
He lectured on war,
But when he got home;
Enough said—and more.

The great auditorium was packed to the doors. A dozen more people and it would have been packed to the windows. This, gentle reader, will give you some idea of the size of the audience.

For Hiram Z. Griggsby, world renowned advocate of international and domestic peace, was a famous man.

"And in conclusion, dear brothers and sisters," ended Mr. Griggsby, "let me say that the millennium will not dawn until peace rules the world, until every man loves his neighbor as a brother, until women forget to quarrel, until every dog has his day and lets the cats alone."

Amidst tumultuous cheering and the throwing of programs the famous peace advocate backed off the platform and wended his way home. On the front doorstep his seven-year-old son, Brittlebean, was sitting.

"What!" cried Griggsby, "dirty hands again! Take that! and that! and that! not to speak of that!" And with each "that" he struck the innocent child on his forehead with a cobblestone which he carried for the purpose, hurting his feelings dreadfully.

Then stalking into the house, he threw his wife down the cellar stairs for daring to have steak for supper without consulting him and severely spanked his eighteen-year-old daughter, Gladwyn, because he thought her new hat was immodest. Then, hastily bolting his supper, he took the 7:59 train for Ginksville to deliver a lecture on, "All Kinds of Peace and Why."—Louisville Times.

OLD PEOPLE GAIN

Strength by Taking Vinol.—Here is Proof.

So many cases like this are constantly coming to our attention that we publish it for the benefit of others.—Mr. John Widmayer of Jackson, Mich., says: "I am nearly 70 years of age, and was in a feeble condition but Vinol has done wonders for me. It is the best medicine to create strength I have ever seen and I have taken a good many of them. Last spring I was run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon regained my strength. Vinol is certainly an invigorating tonic for old people."

It is the medicinal curative elements of the cod livers without oil aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which are contained in Vinol that makes it so efficient in such cases.

If you have an aged father, mother or anyone in your family who needs a strength-creating tonic, try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to benefit. J. C. Pecor, Druggist, Maysville.

P. S.—Port itching, burning skin try our Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

SMALLPOX SITUATION IN FLEMING.
There are still some cases of small pox in the hill country between the L. N. R. R. and Fleming creek but we are told the health authorities are in a situation well in hand and hope to prevent further spread. Ripley Reed was not under arrest for refusing to be vaccinated and Charles Smart may be called a "smart" for disobeying the orders of the Board of Health. Reed was before Judge Fulton Wednesday morning and after thinking the matter over he agreed to comply with the orders of the Board of Health.—Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

By UNCLE DUDLEY.

Infielder Jimmy Prosser, who will essay to fill Emmett Cain's shoes at short for the Cobblers, this season, rounded in from his home in Cleveland Tuesday evening.

Taylor "Chickie" Farrell, who wore an Ironton uniform last season, had his right leg broken in two places Tuesday in a long twisting slide he made in a game Jersey City was playing with Newark in the International League.

President Stern of the Huntington team says he will have Pitcher Mammaux back in his town in 30 days. Mammaux now adorns the pay-roll of the Pittsburgh team and balances one end of the players' bench.

Manager Smith of the Ironton club has given out a partial list of the men who will comprise the team when the curtain falls. He will have the regular infield of Smith, Doyle, Keating and Pezold. The outfield will be made up of Kelley, Kendall and Nelley.

The catchers will be Jackley and Gohr. Five of the pitchers will be kept. This list isn't yet made out and will not be until Dick has seen more of the men.

Manager Pete Childs of the Portsmouth Cubs, Thursday announced that the following players would start the season: Munson and Dillhoff, catchers; Carter, Weller, Hoffer, Diltz, Jones, Trimmer, Jacobus and Davis, pitchers; Edwards, first base; Dunlap, second base; Goosetree, third base; Prosser, shortstop; Baggan, left field; Johnson, center field, and a crack outfielder whose name is not yet ready to be revealed, right field.

Georgetown, Ohio, High School commencement exercises will be held on Thursday evening, May 28th. A class of twenty-five will be graduated.

TO REDUCE ILLITERACY
Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs Endorses Work of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart.

The Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs was urged to redouble its energies in its fight against illiteracy by Miss Hazel Cornell, of Louisville, who presented a report on education at the annual convention being held at The Seelback, Louisville.

Kentucky stands thirty-seventh among the States in literacy, she declared, but educational workers aim to put the State in third place by the next Government census six years hence.

"Education is the greatest defense of man," said Miss Cornell. "With it man is master, without it he is a slave. Any attempt to eliminate illiteracy in Kentucky should be welcomed by all. The last Legislature had a consistent policy of slighting education. The federation is the most powerful body of women in the State. It recognizes the need and through its united efforts can accomplish much."

Work of Mrs. Stewart.
Miss Cornell described the educational campaign carried on through the lectures of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, which were under the auspices of the federation. She said Mrs. Stewart had spoken at Owensboro, Paducah, Winchester, Danville, Harrodsburg, Georgetown, Lexington, Covington, Paris, Maysville, Richmond and Louisville, and that at every one of the cities steps had been taken through subscriptions and volunteer teachers to blot out illiteracy. The campaign had been a financial success, she stated.

She told of the Educational Committee's efforts to get through the Legislature a bill permitting the use of public school buildings for social center meetings.

Charlie Stroude of Washington, D. C. was called here last week on account of the serious illness of his brother, Mr. Angus Stroude.

Mrs. Ella Isgrig Suffering From Paralysis Due To Attack.

Paris, Ky.—Mrs. Ella Isgrig, who more than a week ago was attacked by a negro robber in her home in East Paris and who has suffered severely from a nervous shock, is in a serious condition. It is feared she cannot recover. When Mrs. Isgrig refused the demand of the negro to turn over several hundred dollars which she had in the house she was choked almost into insensibility. Since that time she has suffered paralysis. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the outrage. A negro, arrested on suspicion, could not be identified and was released.

It is announced that the "Billikin" figures have reached Japan and are actually worshiped as the American God of Good Luck. "Billikin" and the oil can as "graven images" are an ironic commentary on the levity and materialism of our American life, but perhaps they are less depressing than the historic cargo of Medford rum that accompanied the early missionaries to Africa, and the American cigarettes that are being introduced throughout China.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Picturesque Institutions of Gotham Eliminated

NEW YORK.—A picturesque bit of New York life is being eliminated pretty rapidly by that industrious young woman, Mrs. "Katie" Davis, our new commissioner of corrections. She threw up her hands in horror at the hoary old custom she found in our famous bastille, proceeded to get a new broom and made a clean sweep. She has even dared to squelch the insidious evil of the woman charity worker, which is still in great vogue at Sing Sing.

Why, it's come to such a pass that it's almost impossible to pass a "shot o' hop" to a friend temporarily detained.

A young woman called to see her husband, accused of petit larceny. She submitted to a search of her person. This has been the rule always, of course, but the Davis search wasn't like the traditional style. Miss Davis' underling went so far that the young woman became very nervous. The searcher became more curious, and especially interested in a pretty little hat pin. It had a long, black, shiny head. And the pin was rudely drawn from the hat. It was hollow, in fact, had once served as the cap of a fountain pen. White cotton was packed inside and the core was a quantity of white powder. "About four grains of morphine," said Dr. Lichtenstein, the Tombs physician. So the young woman was soon occupying a cell near her husband.

The "morbidity parties" are a thing of the past, too. These sight-seeing expeditions have become a special joy to New Jersey commuters. In fact, there are rumors that certain railroads have run special excursions that ruralites might be "uplifted" by a vision of some of the famous Tombs residents. A walk over the Bridge of Sighs brought thrills to the New Jersey heart.

The death knell of the wine champagne affairs indulged in freely by the more wealthy occupants of cells has been sounded, also. No prisoner is allowed to purchase more than 25 cents' worth of food at one time.

Another famous institution has passed in the rude closing up of a Tom Sharkey's cafe. Alas, alas, and once more alas. Here I will shed a real tear. Tom's place was certainly much better than most of the rest in his neighborhood, and there are dark rumors about the genesis of the affair.

But Tom was declared out of order by a city magistrate and sent to the Tombs for 30 days, where he distinguished himself by shoveling more snow out of the courtyard than any other man there, and made himself still more famous by getting a greater amount of work out of the prisoners than any other man since Hendrick Hudson threw the first drunken redskin into a stockade and forced him to roll cigars for the colony. Tom was going to punch any guy who didn't keep his shovel going.

But while Tom added to his laurels in the Tombs his famous $10,000 mahogany bar was going, going, gone for $250.

Conductor Tells of Troubles With Passengers

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—"Yes," said the street car conductor, growing communicative after an altercation with a passenger about a transfer of ancient vintage, "this here job's a cinch—you oughta try it. In this business you learn things about folks, you do. For instance, t'other day a sorry-looking old party wanted to ride free with me because he hadn't the price of a fare and he was too old and sick to walk, but I'd seen him before and I said 'nixie.' I thought the men on the back platform would put me off, the way they went at me and the company and everybody connected for a souless bunch, and at last one man tried to make me ashamed by coughing up a nickel. The old man was grateful to him and went in and picked out the choice seat in front where he could put his two feet on the other seat."

"Says I to the nickel giver, 'You think I'm a clear sign for heart, but if you want to get wise just drop off when the venerable gent does and be a sleuth. If everything's all right report the next time you ride with me and I'll give you this nickel back.'"

"Well, that got him curious like, and he did it, and some time later I happened to pick him up again, and the first thing he pushed me out a cigar. 'Say, pardner, you were right about that old guy,' he said. 'What did he do but beat it for the nearest booze joint and load up with a good stiff 'un, and then carry off a pint of red juice, and he didn't ask the barkeep to give it to him neither.'"

"A girl one day handed me a transfer. It was punched for the wrong day, the wrong hour and the wrong line, but she crossed her heart and said she'd just got it, so I let it go, 'cause, of course, you can't set a little kid girl out on the curb. At the end of the line I noticed she was having trouble with her mind and she says, 'Say, mister, I wasn't telling you no story about that transfer. I did just get it. I just got it off the pavement. I ain't got a cent now, but I'm going to bring you the nickel I owe you.' 'All right, sissy,' I said, and thought no more of it, 'cause folks don't usually fetch nickels when they once get away, but a day or two after that, when I came to the end, there was my girl waiting, all shriveled up with cold, and with my nickel tucked in her mitten. Say, I just felt like I wanted to wait for that girl and marry her by and by."

Shooting Follows the Loss of One Cigarette

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A quarrel over a cigarette resulted in two men being shot and a sixteen-year-old boy charged with the shooting early the other morning. Gust Ewert, eighteen years old, 592 Madison street, was shot in the left breast, the bullet striking directly over the heart.

Albert Schmidt, twenty years old, 560 Sixteenth avenue, received a bullet behind the right ear. Vincent Walsh, sixteen years old, who, according to the police, did the shooting, was held over on a warrant charging him with assault.

After the shooting, which occurred at Ninth and National avenues shortly after three o'clock, Ewert was taken to the residence of Dr. Harry S. Piggin. An examination disclosed that the bullet, which was steel tipped, had lodged half an inch beneath the surface of the skin in the chest wall.

Schmidt's examination at Emergency hospital by Dr. Scheele showed that the bullet had struck the mastoid bone of the skull just behind the left ear. It plowed through the hard shell and into the soft cellular recesses of the bone and thence ran into the ear, from where it was easily extracted.

The story told by the three concerned was identical in that the shooting resulted from the theft of a cigarette from Walsh's mouth.

Ewert, Schmidt and several other young men passed Walsh on the street. One of the two victims snatched Walsh's cigarette from his mouth.

The lad drew a revolver from his pocket and fired three times, it is said. Two bullets found marks.

No More "Spooning" Via This Bank's Telephone

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Cupid was blocking the right of way of Mammon, so the doors of the public telephone booths in the National Bank of Commerce were removed. When the bank building was erected special booths were constructed on both sides of the Olive street entrance. They had large glass doors and were sound proof. They were meant for the use of persons who had confidential communications for their financial agents.

Courting couples took possession of the marble-lined, glass-doored, sound-proof booths. Famous financiers, with large interests in stock and bonds, would seek instant communication with their brokers.

They might be on the "bull" side of a falling market. Every moment meant the loss or gain of thousands of dollars.

Vainly the men of Mammon walked nervously up and down the tessellated corridor of the bank, or pounded at the glass doors. Love laughed at bankers even more uproariously than it laughs at locksmiths.

W. B. Cowen, vice-president of the bank, said that no doubt it was true that "love makes the world go round."

"But love clogs the wheels of business," said Mr. Cowen, "so we had to take the doors off the booths."

"Now the boys and girls do not take up much time exchanging soft nothings and a poor banker can get a chance to make himself some money by putting through a deal by phone once in a while."

LAUNCHING OF DREADNAUGHT OKLAHOMA

Uncle Sam's latest giant fighting ship was launched at the yard of the New York Shipbuilding company at Camden, N. J., March 23. Miss Lorena J. Cruce, daughter of the governor of Oklahoma, is shown in the picture just before she sent the dreadnaught down the ways by smashing a bottle of champagne across the bow.

PASSING OF ONE-TIME CHILD-WIFE RECALLS CAREER OF CASSIUS M. CLAY

Strange Marriage of Aristocratic, Fire Eating Southern Abolitionist at Age of Ninety and Dora Richardson, the Thirteen-Year-Old Child of a Poor White Family, a Union That Caused a Siege at Clay Mansion.

Louisville, Ky.—It is more than ten years now since the name of Gen. Cassius M. Clay figured in the day's dispatches from Kentucky. We used to read of him in 1903 as an old man with a bushy white mane in a state of siege at his family mansion near Richmond, Ky., with faithful retainers, armed with guns, defending the besieged house against attacks by process servers and the curious public.

The name is only recalled to mind now by the dispatch the other day announcing the death of Dora Richardson, the erstwhile child wife of the aged warrior and statesman.

It was one of the strangest romances in history, that strange affinity between the old man, the aristocrat, scholar, diplomat and soldier, the scion of one of the proudest lines in America and the little, untutored, unkempt girl of a poor white family. He was ninety, she was thirteen. He was old enough to be her great-grandfather, yet he married her.

It was the old man's dream to take the untutored child, accustom her to the ways of culture, educate her, make her a fitting heir for his name and estate. He carried out his part of the plan, but the poor child could never accustom herself to her unusual surroundings. After she tired of the dolls and the other toys he bought her she pined for her own folks and, when he saw it was inevitable, Gen. Clay yielded gracefully, dowering her with some of the precious heirlooms of the Clay family and giving her a house. The girl, in turn, having married Riley Brock, a youth of her own station and age, named her first born Clay Brock.

And now her little day of fame is ended. Death has closed the most unusual romance of the old Blue Grass state. Finis is written. Gen. Clay was all but forgotten prior to 1903 when his marriage to the slip of a girl brought once more into prominence the hero of a departed age. Now he will recede into history.

The events growing out of that marriage, the beleaguered state of his house, the opposition of his children, the sensations that developed were but recurrences of the old time bellicose nature of the man who fought with pen or bowie knife or tongue with equal facility. It was because he was a fighting man that the marriage with the child wife and the reluctance to be interviewed on the subject attracted attention.

Those were the days when faithful servants of the old aristocrat guarded every approach to White Hall, the manor house of his estate at Richmond, Ky., with loaded guns; when the house itself was in a state of siege, guns bristling from its windows and sentries keeping incessant watch.

That impertinent curiosity of the public regarding his private affairs irritated the old fighter. The bitterness that arose between the doughty old general and his kinsfolk following his strange marriage aroused his animosity. He did not hesitate to fire on a couple of deputies who approached to serve a writ demanding furniture which belonged to his daughters. His Spartan spirit did not hesitate even to threaten to fire at his own son, when the latter would have made peace. He was of an implacable nature.

He was a fighting man born and bred and he died a fighting man, denying entrance to a physician, with his trusty bowie knife near his pillow and his guns within reach. The body of the old man might decay; his spirit nothing could quench.

A flood of memories comes with the mention of the death of the child wife of this fighting Kentuckian, memories that are now beginning to hardened into formal history with the passing from the stage of the men who recall the day when the name Clay was a name to conjure with.

In the halls of congress, in the secret chambers of diplomacy, on the battlefields of the country a Clay has ever made his influence felt. Ever since the country has been a country there has been a Clay to figure in its history. If there were no controversy to take part in a Clay would start one. And now the last of the family is gone—the last fighting

DYING BOY'S WISH GRANTED

Washington Youth, With Incurable Heart Trouble, Sees President Wilson at White House.

Washington.—A nine-year-old boy, dying of heart trouble, was brought to the White House to have his desire to see and be smiled upon by the president of the United States granted. He is Harry Winthrop Davis, son of Mrs. A. L. Davis of Sewickley, Pa. The boy has had incurable heart trouble for years, and is now being taken to Atlantic City, where there is a chance that he may live a few weeks longer. He was taken to the White House in an ambulance and was brought into the blue room on a cot, where the president and Mrs. Wilson greeted him. The president made the boy happy by presenting him with a bouquet of forget-me-nots.

Husband Called Her "Cave Woman." Hoboken, N. J.—Because her husband called her an "ignorant mutt" and a "cave woman" when she ob-member, for of the descendants of the general there has been none yet to break into print with bellicose threat-enings.

To the old general it made little difference whether the fight were with drawn pens, with revolvers, broad-swords, fists or guns. But perhaps he liked best the bowie knife. That was a Kentucky defense. Old Colonel Bowie had devised it. The long, keen blade, a certain weapon in the hands of a strong man, it was the common thing among those who resorted to brute strength. No story of hunter or outlaw was complete in the old Nick Carter days without the bowie knife. It is obsolete now, but it was the weapon General Clay knew; when his fingers gripped its hilt his own valor did the rest. He once stood off a dozen men in a hand-to-hand conflict, ripping them to ribbons with his bowie knife and a bowie knife it was that he kept near him as long as breath remained in his body, in that last warm fight with death.

A fight was natural for General Clay. He got his title for leading troops in the Mexican war. He used to say that no man could get political preferment in Kentucky without a military title and that he went to war with that purpose in view. His Mexican campaigning days he endured with distinction.

His main fights, however, were in connection with slavery. He was one of the few southern abolitionists. To what fortuitous circumstance we owe it that he went to Yale college to complete the studies he had begun in Transylvania college does not appear. But he went. And when in New England he was deeply moved by the speeches of that prophet of abolition, William Lloyd Garrison. Champion of an unpopular cause, Garrison became a hero to young Clay. It may have been because the great abolitionist was with bravery putting up a losing fight that the Kentuckian admired him.

At all events when he went back among his Kentucky slave holding friends he went back an ardent abolitionist. Fearless espousal of that cause lost him the re-election to the state legislature in 1841. In '44 he stumped the North with all the impetuosity of his fiery nature for the election of his father's cousin, Henry Clay, to the presidency.

In a barricaded building, more resembling an arsenal than a printing office, in the city of Lexington on Kentucky's slave soil he issued in 1845 The True American, openly advocating anti-slavery.

And all but forgotten was he, had it not been for his strange marriage and his child wife, whose passing the other day revived memories.

DECLARES DOGS SEE SPIRITS

Miss Lind Also Believes That All Animals Have Souls—Comes to Fight Vivisection.

New York.—"You've got to stop kicking my dog around."

The lady is here to make you stop. Miss Louise Lind of Hageby, champion of the anti-vivisectionists, of world-wide fame, arrived on the Lusitania from Liverpool. Miss Lind says that she is far from being opposed to science, but she is violently opposed to cutting up live dogs and other animals for the benefit of science. She says that it is not necessary. Some years ago she had erected in London a monument to "The Little Brown Dog," the victim of Vivisection.

College students tore down the monument and a few riots followed. But the champion of the little brown dog says that the monument served its purpose in directing attention to the sacrifice of live animals to science.

Miss Lind says that it was a visit to the Pasteur institute in Paris which originated the crusade in aid of the dog and other animals subjected to torture for science. She is on her way to Washington to attend the international Anti-vivisection and Animal Protection Congress.

The friend of the canine is interested in a number of women's movements. She is a suffragette but does not believe in militancy, she says. Militancy, she believes, is as bad as vivisection, in its way.

Miss Lind is also a student of psychic research. She was a friend of the late William T. Stead, who went down on the Titanic. She believes that dogs and other animals have immortal souls as well as human beings.

"It is just as reasonable," said the lady, "to admit that animals have immortal souls as that we have. I believe that dogs may see spirits. We often see exhibits of a high order of intelligence in animals. How often have you observed a dog lying at your side suddenly rise, with his hair bristling and a strange look in his eyes? He sees something which you cannot see."

BEAUTIFUL MAID MARY

By HARMONY WELLER.

Mary Perkins did not answer the advertisement for a maid out of a spirit of adventure. On the contrary, she was in absolute need of employment in order to make both ends of her financial life meet. The embroidery she did was not remunerative enough to pay expenses and Mary had no further business training.

The young author who had advertised had pondered long and deeply before putting forth his need in the newspapers, yet there was no alternative. He must have some one to look after his home and he was old-fashioned enough to feel that a woman and not a man should do it.

When he answered Mary Perkins' ring at the door bell Everly hoped it would be an applicant waiting there.

The girl standing outside was slight. Her hair was neatly brushed back and her eyes looked curiously large through the thick-lensed glasses she wore. Her skin was of a dull, almost Indian hue.

"I have come in answer to your advertisement for a maid," she said, and Everly opened the door.

His writing den was nearest to the entrance, and thither he led Mary Perkins.

"All that is essential for me is," he said to her, "that you can keep house intelligently—and quietly." He looked at the girl in so helpless a way that Mary was tempted to laugh. "If you could manage in half a day I would much prefer your being here only from ten o'clock until after my dinner in the middle of the day."

"That will suit me," Mary replied. The arrangement delighted her, because it left her afternoons free to continue her embroidery and thus add to her income.

"Have you had your breakfast as yet?" she questioned, taking the reins within her capable hands.

"I was finishing a story," he said by way of answer.

Mary rose to her feet.

"If you show me my way about the house I will prepare something for you."

And from the very beginning Mary took complete possession of Everly's establishment.

So excellent was Mary's cooking that Everly ventured to suggest one of the dreams of his author's mind. Always, since the beginning of his literary career he had wanted to have editors and publishers dining at his own table.

"That is," thought Everly, "it is easy if Mary will stay and serve dinner." He went forthwith to the door and called her.

When she stood beside him, Everly found his eyes opening a trifle wider than was usual with them. Mary seemed so different, so altogether different from the girl she had been. It took him a moment or so to realize that the thick-lensed glasses had been discarded; that the skin was curiously fair and the hair wonderfully riotous.

"You called me, sir?" Mary suggested.

"I called the old Mary. What have you done to yourself?"

The girl blushed and became suddenly abashed.

"I grew tired of looking so plain," she admitted. "When I applied for the position I was very much in need and I felt certain you would not engage me as a maid if—" she broke off with downcast eyes.

"I most certainly would not," said Everly with conviction. He sighed a second later and Mary asserted her rights as a successful domestic.

"My fingers have not lost their cunning with the culinary art just because I am less homely than you thought me. I can serve as good a meal and keep your house as clean as I ever did, so why may I not be myself?"

"I am perfectly well aware of all these facts," Everly admitted, "but that does not alter the fact that you are far too lovely, too altogether beautiful to—" he broke off and smiled at the humor of the situation.

"Too beautiful to what?" asked Mary.

"Well—the fact is," admitted Everly, "that it has been the dream of my life to have a home to which I can invite my friends. I wanted, next Saturday night, to give a small dinner party to six men, that is—providing you would have been willing to arrange everything for me."

"And why may I not? I can stay all day Saturday and I will plan and serve a dinner that will make the editors accept every story you send them."

"And have them all vying with each other for your attention when they see you—no, thanks." Because Everly was completely mystified as to his own sudden emotions and quite unable to cope with the situation he turned to his typewriter. That movement had always been Mary's cue to exit.

It was scarcely five minutes before he heard her soft knock on his study door. When she came in he laughed aloud, partly from relief and partly because of his new emotion.

Mary's skin was work, her heavy glasses were in place, and her hair was severely drawn back.

"How many covers shall I arrange for—for the dinner party, sir?" she questioned.

Everly jumped to his feet, took the glasses from her eyes, dragged the pinioned tendrils of soft gold hair from their captivity and laughed whimsically down into Mary's flushed face.

"I have thought of the only possible way to keep you," he said breathlessly, for things had happened rather suddenly, "you understand—do you not, dear?"

A moment later Mary looked up. "But the dinner—I want to serve that."

"I have told you the one condition under which you can preside," Everly said firmly; "either you are here as my wife or not at all. I would have to get a strange girl if you—"

"If I let you—which I will not," Mary whispered softly. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

NEWS and GOSSIP WASHINGTON

War Chief Is Barred From the House

WASHINGTON.—Henry Breckenridge, assistant secretary of war, found out the other day that the rules of the house does not admit to the floor tant secretaries, even though they are for the time acting cabinet officers.

Mr. Breckenridge is very much interested in the tolls debate and the other afternoon started to walk past William Gormley, assistant doorkeeper, who guards the portals at the southeast entrance. Mr. Gormley put up his hands as a sign to Mr. Breckenridge not to enter.

"I am entitled to enter," said Mr. Breckenridge stiffly.

"How's that?" asked Mr. Gormley courteously.

"I am the assistant secretary of war," said Breckenridge. "In fact, today I am the acting secretary of war."

"That does a little to the floor privilege," responded Mr. Gormley. "I have been told that I can go in," persisted Mr. Breckenridge.

"It is against the rules of the house," responded Mr. Gormley. "If you are some one of more authority I will send for the chief doorkeeper."

Mr. Gormley sent a page to hunt up Joseph F. Sinnott, chief doorkeeper. The boy could not find him. At this point Representative Oscar Underwood intervened.

"If you are waiting for someone you may go to my office," said Mr. Underwood.

"I wish you would find out whether I can go in," insisted Mr. Breckenridge. "I do not intend to be subjected any further to such indignities, young man; go your name."

Mr. Breckenridge took the name and went away.

The rules of the house admit only cabinet members, and it was agreed Mr. Gormley was acting within his rights.

Wrong Man, but Got Call-Down Just the Same

REPRESENTATIVE W. J. CARY of Milwaukee, Wis., is considered a very busy man. It is only occasionally that he can steal away and forget that he is in the capital of his country, representing one of her great states. On such an evening, recently, he attended a stag party, and did not get back to his hotel until some time after midnight. It was Saturday night, or, rather, Sunday morning, and he slipped into bed with a sigh of relief that he could sleep all night if he liked.

About seven o'clock the telephone rang, startling him out of the best rest he had had for weeks. So was not with a very pleasant voice at his side:

"Hello—"

"Hello—"

"Boston?" was the astounded reply. "Somebody from Boston calling me? You must be mistaken—"

"Hello! Hello!" came impatiently from Boston, and, without waiting for response, launched into a tirade of abuse.

"You're the man that got up on the house floor the other day and declared that the Boston tea party was one of those historical fakes; that our ancestors were all drunk at the time—eh?"

"No, madam. I assure you that you are mistaken. I'm not the man. You are the wrong man. I say—"

"But shrill ejaculations that he was the man and he didn't deny it interrupted.

"But, madam, you are only spending a lot of money to tell me of something I—"

"I don't care how much money I spend, I wanted to have the pleasure of denouncing you—you, who are trying to be mayor of Boston. Yes, you're a fine man to be our mayor, now, aren't you?"

"I don't know, as I am not aspiring for the honor. I am Representative Cary and I live in Wisconsin, when I can, and am at home—"

"Oh, oh—oh, I am so sorry! Oh, you just don't know how sorry I am, sir! I wanted to talk to Representative Curley. You know he is—"

"Yes, madam, I know he is running for chief official of your city. About his speech on the floor—"

"Pardon me, please. Goodbye—"

Educational Work Makes a Hit With the Sailors

NOT only are the enlisted men of the navy displaying an amazing interest in the educational work recently instituted by Secretary Daniels on board warships, but the officers also are applying themselves with great diligence to the task of teaching the men. This, in substance, is the report of George A. Reeder, shipboard secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, assigned to the Atlantic battleship fleet, made public by the navy department.

Secretary Reeder relates that on the second day at sea the men of the fleet were summoned below decks to listen to the reading of the department circular, outlining the plan of education and the various lines of study that the men could study. It was both interesting and amusing, he says, to see the expressions on the old sea dogs as they heard the courses outlined and discussed the studies they were going to pursue. The real spirit of the work, however, he said, began to manifest itself when "school call" sounded on the following day and the men went to their class rooms.

"The interest that was developed on the part of the men was amazing," Mr. Reeder said. "It so happened that a night or two after the work began I stood a mid-watch with one of the junior officers and in coming down the quarters I heard two men talking in subdued but earnest tones. One man said to the other: 'Why, you fool, four times eight is thirty-two. Ain't you never going to learn that?' And it struck me that if the educational plan had gripped men sufficiently to keep them at work between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning on simple sums in arithmetic it was going to prove of real value to the personnel of the fleet."

Rep. Kahn Says Japanese Girls Like Fat Men

THE writer of the popular song, "Nobody Loves a Fat Man," ought to go to Japan and learn his error. So says Representative Julius Kahn of California, who is very far from being a "lightweight" champion when it comes to adipose tissue. Mr. Kahn is a great traveler and has found his size of some disadvantage in foreign countries when it comes to the matter of transportation, for in China the men who carry passengers in chairs always get twice the number of carriers when he goes out on a trip. It was the same way in other Oriental lands; everywhere, however, he met his reward. In the land of the chrysanthemum fat is regarded as a sign of beauty, and is an object greatly to be wished for by the men. One evening Mr. Kahn and his wife were at a bazaar. Strolling about they finally paused before the booth of a fair maiden.

The girl gazed with admiration on the imposing figure of the American representative and at last ran out from behind the table, threw her arms around his neck and burst out into exclamations of delight.

"Oh, how nice!" she cried in broken English. "Nice and fat!" proceeding to bestow a series of most emphatic hugs on the object of her admiration.

Mrs. Kahn burst into laughter and the representative hastened to extricate himself and his wife from the building.

Platinum Grows Costly.

Russia produces nearly all the world's supply of platinum, about 13,250 pounds annually. In 1922 it cost $59 a pound, and it is now worth $433 a pound. Extensive deposits found in Germany will, it is hoped, considerably increase the world's supply.

Not That Sort.

Miss Fillette—No, it cannot be. I am already engaged.

Adorer—Eh? If you were already engaged, why didn't you tell me so?

Miss Fillette (indignantly)—I am not the sort of a girl to boast of my conquests.

There is no substitute for thoroughgoing, ardent and sincere earnestness.—DeZeus.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR APRIL 26

THE LOST SHEEP AND THE LOST COIN.

LESSON TEXT.—Luke 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Even so, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." Luke 15:10.

I. Introduction, vv. 1-3.—We now come to that chapter in the Bible which contains three of the more celebrated parables of our Lord. In last week's lesson we had set before us the severe terms of discipleship laid down by Jesus to the multitude which followed him as he left the house of the Pharisee. The writer, Luke, makes a close connection between the final admonition about "ears to hear" in chapter 14 and verse 1 of this lesson. Jesus had lifted the door open to himself, for he was seeking those who were prepared to share with him in his enterprises of building and of conflict, if they could bear his teaching. This is responded to by those outcast ones, the publicans and the sinners. They had no righteousness of their own, no spiritual hope centered in themselves and they turned eagerly to one who was unqualifiedly honest with them though at the same time he set up heart searching conditions. What a contrast! The grumbling theologians, criticizing and bickering, grieved that he should demean himself by such associates. In reply, Jesus shows them the truth of the fundamental purpose of God's attitude toward these who eagerly sought to "hear," by giving them these parables. In the first two, the sheep and the coin, we see divine love seeking the sinner; in the third, the prodigal, we see the sinner seeking the father. Christ's idea of goodness consists in saving the bad. The Pharisee holds aloof. Christ goes out from among the Pharisees and among the outcasts.

True and False Shepherds.

II. The Lost Sheep, vv. 4-7.—The shepherd is God the son (John 10:11, 12; Luke 19:10). He is the "True Shepherd," the Pharisees were false ones. This adds point to the parable; see the Old Testament rebukes for the same, Ez. 34:7-10; Zech. 11:16-17; Jer. 50:6. The lost sheep belongs to the fold, but was out of place. These outcast ones were still Israelites and the backsliding Christian still belongs to the fold. A sinner is a lost sheep. He is away from the care, the protection, the guidance of the shepherd and is torn, bleeding, and "ready to die." One such lost one will call forth the shepherd's utmost endeavor to save it, far beyond the care lavished upon the ninety-and-nine already safe in the fold. This means labor, toil, and privation, and he keeps up the search "until he finds it." This does not mean that all will be saved, see John 17:12, 12 R. V., but every "sheep" that is astray he will find. Once found it rests upon his shoulders, is kept by his power, I Pet. 1:5. Over it he and the father rejoice, vv. 23, 24, 32. There is here the evidence of the interest in the flock which is incomplete and the interest of the owner as well. The safety of the lost one God rejoices more over the sinner's salvation than does the sinner himself. The neighbors also rejoice and so do the angels in glory. All rejoice with me; contrast this with the attitude of the Pharisee. We see here a revelation of the matchless strength and tenderness of God which is on the one hand a rebuke and on the other a comfort to the publicans and the sinners. What a suggestion of peril and sacrifice is suggested in this story and what a pean of joy is sounded at its close.

Work of Holy Spirit.

III. The Lost Coin, vv. 8-10.—These three parables are a unit in the fact that they reveal the attitude of God toward men who are in their deepest need. Each is the story of something being lost and the fact that it is found. The first is a revelation of the son, the last of the father, while this central one sets forth the work of the holy spirit through the church. Rev. 22:17; Eph. 5:25. One of ten coins in this woman's marriage necklace is lost, hence the incompleteness. The spirit will not rest until it is found, nor should the church. The woman takes her lamp—the word of God, Ps. 119:105; Phil. 2:15, 16—and sweeps the house. It has been suggested that sweeping usually stirs up a dust and that some are likely to object. So the world will object when the church of the living God begins to stir up a dust and they are annoyed at any eager search for the lost ones, Acts 17:6. The woman is a suggestion to us in that she sought "diligently," until the lost coin was found. Then she, too, calls in her neighbors that they may rejoice with her. Does the church keep up a like search? And do we know anything about the "joy" of the holy spirit? Gal. 5:22, I Thess. 1:5. Over the wellbeing of the home the woman watches and again the search is in the interest of the owner, and in the interest of the household. Like the other parable the final note is one of joy.

IV. Summary.—The chief value of these two pictures is in their revelation of the work and interest of the son of the publicans and sinners, held in contempt by the Pharisees, Jesus viewed as lost ones. Appalling as this suggestion is, yet the sheep belonged to the shepherd and the coin was the property of the woman. This suggests the dignity and value of men and the tragedy of their condition. Knowing all this and understanding the full significance of that tragedy, the son as the shepherd has undertaken to seek and to save the lost

WHOM SHE LOVED BEST

By JANE BELFIELD.

(Copyright.)
"It is easy to discover which man the woman loves best." The king of the Scarabee islands shifted his gaze from the blue sea shining above the broad coral reef, and sneeringly regarded his latest favorite. "Bring out the prisoners. Four—you said?" "Four were shipwrecked, oh, king—the woman, a child and two men."

"And the child is hers, but she will not tell her husband!" "She will not tell."

The king yawned. Not much entertainment for a white man to be captured by these savages and forced to be their chief! Twice he had attempted to escape and twice been ignominiously retaken. According to their laws—their stupid, unchangeable laws—the third attempt meant death.

He glanced down the long rows of bamboo trees whence his half-naked negroes led forward the group of white prisoners.

A woman, young and beautiful, held fast the hand of a blue-eyed boy. A tall, fair man followed between two stalwart blacks.

Then another guard and another man, slight of build, dark of countenance.

The king beckoned to the woman, saying: "I'm sorry for all of you—but—do you know their law?"

The woman strained hopefully forward. "You are not—"

"One of them? No—but I am their prisoner as much as you are. Shipwrecked—saved because I practised a little easy magic to fool them! I'm still clothed in purple and fine linen, you see." The king of the Scarabee islands spread out his skirt of woven grasses.

"Can you not save us?" she implored wildly.

The king shook his head. "Two of you. They do not kill women—unless by request. This is their ancient law. You may live, and the one you love best also may live. I will put you both on the first ship that passes this most detestable spot."

The woman knelt and clasped the boy. Over his head her eyes strained despairingly toward the two men who stood calmly regarding her.

For an instant the eyes of the taller left hers and lingered upon the boy's yellow curls.

Two natives with knotted clubs stepped forward. The king rose. His gaze swept the multitude of dark faces.

He hesitated—no—his interference would but change those stolid countenances to fury.

"She chooses the boy," he said.

The blacks seized the tall, fair prisoner.

"No!" the woman shrieked. "No—not him! You have another law—the king's counselor told me—you dare not refuse a life for a life! I choose the child, but I claim the right to die in place of this man." She stretched out her hand toward the captive whose hair was golden as the boy's. "No! Do not listen to him. Guard the prisoner! You who are chief here—you dare not refuse. It is your law—your unchangeable law!"

The woman whispered in the boy's ear, and thrust his hand into the hand of the tall, fair man, who struggled vainly with his captors in desperate protest.

"Take them away! Take them away!" the king commanded. "This man and the boy are free!"

The woman smiled and turned her face toward the other prisoner—slight of build, dark of countenance.

The executioners bound them together.

"I die," she murmured low, "with you!"

At even, the king of the Scarabee islands listened moodily to the swish of the bamboo trees.

"Which man did the woman love best, oh, king?"

The king of the Scarabee islands silently regarded his latest favorite in the glow of the moon.

Introduced Potato Into France.

Recently the hundredth anniversary of the death of Antoine Augustin Parmentier, who introduced potatoes into France, was celebrated by the farmers of his native land. He was the apothecary of the invalids, when, following the famine of 1769, the Academie de Besancon announced a prize for discovering a vegetable which could be used in time of famine. Parmentier won the prize with the indication of the nutritive starch of certain plants. The potato was then unknown in France. It had been brought from Peru, but was the object of warnings by doctors, who attributed to its use various fevers and even leprosy affections. Parmentier persuaded the government in 1778 to give him a farm for his experiments. From the first flowering of the plants he sent a bouquet to Louis XVI, which gave the vegetable its first popularity.

Troubles of Book Reviewer.

I suppose the life of a reviewer of novels must always be one perpetual struggle between his prejudices and his conscience. "Oh, I say," cries Parmentier, "I don't like this book at all." "Read on," replies Conscience sternly. "It's a perfectly good book. It's simply your wicked nature that makes you object to it."—A Book Reviewer in London Punch.

There is no substitute for thoroughgoing, ardent and sincere earnestness.—DeZeus.

IDEAS for HOME BUILDERS

By WM. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1327 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

It is surprising to one who has not given the matter thought, how many little points there are connected with the planning of an up-to-date convenient residence that can be gotten all wrong if the architect is not exceedingly careful or doesn't know his business, and the house resulting be almost ruined, so far as comfort and the conveniences of housekeeping are concerned.

It has frequently been suggested that architects doing residence work should seek advice of the women concerning many points, and find out from first-hand testimony just how the housekeeper wants to have the many features which mean so much to her, but which mere man knows very little of. Some of these points that have been suggested are as follows:

What woman would put in laundry tubs so deep that the luckless worker who is of short or medium stature is in constant danger of pitching forward upon her head, while the tall woman can at least reckon upon a headache or backache as the result of a few hours work; or, who but man would make the ledge between the tubs so wide that no ordinary wringer can be fitted to it? Would any woman dream of standing a kitchen range so close to the wall on the side where the match has to be applied and the stop-cocks regulated that it is only by difficult maneuvering with the left hand that the range can be managed at all?

Nor is there any plausible reason for so arranging the wall spaces that the refrigerator must stand next to the stove, while the closet in the kitchen, which is to be used as a pantry, is as far away from the self-same stove as it is possible to place it, presumably to give the cook some needed exercise in getting up a meal.

Another idea which should suggest itself to the woman architect, or architect's assistant, is the fact that the toilet room, if there is but one, should be separate from the bathroom, as a matter of family convenience; also, if the bathroom is on the second floor, an extra toilet and laboratory should be provided on the first floor.

There is no good reason, either, for setting a bathtub a few inches above the floor, thus leaving a space underneath which is almost inaccessible and yet must be kept clean for sanitary reasons. Then, too, if the demand were insistent enough, manufacturers might see fit to market a washtub so made that a woman's hair would not inevitably catch upon the faucet every time she washed her face.

A clever woman assisting in planning houses or apartments would see the advantage of plain moldings and woodwork, oiled kitchen and bathroom floors, and washable walls. Another feature that might be easily introduced in the kitchen, laundry and bathroom floors is a drain, so that they could be flushed with water that would run off through connections with pipes.

In the more luxurious homes, dish and clothes washers run by electricity would help materially to render the work less disagreeable and to induce the servant problem to settle itself. Fireless cookers, now used by not a few up-to-date housekeepers, might also be built in. Outdoor racks for garbage cans, with openings into the kitchen, have at last found their way into a few of the better class apartment houses, but these as well as soiled clothes chutes from upper floors to the laundry should be installed in every well appointed private house.

Indoor drying rooms for use on snowy or rainy washdays are another convenience that might easily be provided for in the cellar, but are generally lacking. These are but a few of the things that a woman assistant could keep before the eyes of an architect in the domestic branch of the work.

In buildings that are to be rented, it should be made an invariable rule to put in as many permanent features as possible, such as towel and soap racks and medicine chest in bathrooms, utensil shelves and hooks in kitchen and pantry, as well as curtain hooks and portiere poles, in addition to shades and screens for windows and doors. For, where this is not done, each succeeding tenant adds his mite to the disfigurement of walls and woodwork.

In the design illustrated herewith, many of these suggestions have been taken advantage of, and this design is offered as embodying numerous desirable features and labor-saving conveniences which the women appreciate.

In this design there are three large rooms on the main floor, besides pantry, downstairs toilet room, ice box alcove and back entry. The front of the house is especially attractive, with the large living room lighted on three sides. Broad cased openings connect the stair hall with the living room on one side and the dining room on the other, making in all a very spacious apartment. The kitchen is convenient to the dining room, also to the front door and the stairs.

The second floor of this house is small, compared to the first-floor plan, since the living room is a one-story wing with flat roof. This, however, provides a very nice secondary balcony opening out of one of the bedrooms, which can be used very easily for an outdoor sleeping room in the summer time. Both of the bedrooms are of good size, and are nicely arranged for convenience.

This house is designed along strictly modern lines, giving the popular cement stucco outside finish. The house will cost from $3,500 to $4,000, depending on the local material and labor market. It is a design of a good deal of style and can be recommended as generally satisfactory.

Napoleon's Vain Hope.

One hundred years ago, March 6, the allied army advancing on Paris was seriously threatened in the rear by the French peasantry. Long unaccustomed to invasion, and exasperated by the devastation wrought by the invaders, the peasants gathered into troops and massacred the foreign soldiery when not in sufficient numbers to keep them in check. This led Napoleon to hope that his diminished army would be supported by a general rising of the people. But in this he was disappointed. The people didn't rise in any considerable number, and the allies continued to march upon Paris, convinced that the possession of the French capital must inevitably bring the war to a favorable conclusion.

Find Relics in Old English Mine.

A curious find was made by quarrymen working in Hopton Wood limestone quarries, near Matlock, Derbyshire, England, recently. They broke into the shaft of a long-forgotten lead mine, which is expected to yield interesting relics when fully explored. At the head of the shaft several miners' petrified candles were found, and on a ledge of rock were the initials P. B. and the date 1766, cut with a pick.

W. C. T. U. members will be interested to know that Sir Ernest Shackleton, who is on a long journey across the South Pole continent, will not allow his men to take any alcohol on the journey. The beverages they take are only tea and cocoa, tea in the middle of the day and cocoa at night.

President Wilson Says No War Exists As Yet—What Will the Harvest Be?

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Senate today, without debate, passed the volunteer army bill, as agreed to by the conferees of the House and Senate. This is one of the essentials before the President can go ahead with any plans for general operations in Mexico. While the President today declared it was not his intention at present of calling for volunteers, it was made apparent that he was providing for every possible contingency.

Future steps are dependent upon a more definite announcement of the intentions of General Carranza. Likewise it is declared, the American forces will not extend their operations beyond the vicinity of Vera Cruz until it is clear whether General Huerta will declare war or send troops to attempt to dislodge the American forces.

EUROPE APPROVES AMERICA'S STAND.

PARIS, April 24.—An agreement between France and England as to what position these countries would take in the event of war between Mexico and the United States is believed to have been reached at a series of conferences held between Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, and Premier Doumergue.

Sir Edward said today that he believed that the United States was on the point of taking a step in Mexico that all thoughtful men would approve.

Scott has known Villa for some time the two having faced each other across the Rio Grande for many weeks at El Paso and Juarez.

ELECTRIC SIGNS!

The distinguishing air of quality which a first-class Electric Sign gives to a store is the element which gives a sign its greatest value as an advertising medium and investment. The impression it makes is good. It blazes forth to the public that there is business enterprise, merchandise and methods up-to-date. It affects the entire atmosphere of the business district. The stranger says, "It is a live town," and publishes it abroad.

It is the Sign of the Times.

A car on the road is worth any number in the garage. A big reason for Ford popularity is Ford dependability. The Ford is "Johnnie-on-the-spot" three hundred and sixty-five days a year. It gives unequalled service to its owner.

Five hundred dollars is the price of the Ford runabout, the touring car is five fifty; electric self-starter and electric lights $100 extra—f. o. b. Detroit, complete with equipment. Get catalog and particulars from Central Garage Co., 112-114-116 Market street, Maysville, Ky.
